this book an inaugural publication from the australian teacher education association atea teacher education innovation intervention and impact is both a product of and seeks to contribute to the changing global and political times in teacher education research this book marks an historically significant shift in the collective work and outreach of the australian teacher education association atea as it endeavours to become an even more active contributor to a research rich foundation for initial teacher education and to a research informed teaching profession the book showcases teacher education research and scholarship from a wide range of institutional collaborations across australia studies highlight the multiple ways in which teacher education researchers are engaging with students teachers schools and communities to best prepare future teachers it informs both teacher education policy and practice and is a must read for those engaged in the education community above all it marks a shift for teacher educators to build a research rich teaching profession in recent years there has been increased attention paid to the importance of assessment in geographical education the chosen subject for this book assessment is an important tool for collecting information about student learning and for providing timely data to inform key stakeholders including students teachers parents and policymakers to be effective assessment needs to be valid reliable and fair validity is about ensuring that we assess what we claim we are assessing reliability is about measuring performance and understanding in a consistent way without validity and reliability assessment is unlikely to provide equitable opportunities for students to demonstrate what they know and can do as geography educators it is therefore important that we identify the core concepts and skills in geography that we want students to master we need a clear understanding of what the progression of learning looks like for each concept and skill so we can develop fit for purpose assessments that track and improve student learning while there is a substantial literature on evidence based assessment in secondary school contexts research exploring best practice assessment in geography is rare this is a concern given the distinctive nature of geography and the important role of assessment in the learning process this scholarly collection seeks to address this issue by connecting research in educational assessment with the domain of geography the chapters are written by leading researchers in geographical education from across the globe these chapters provide examples of innovation through the collective voices of geography teacher educator scholars from across australia usa south korea germany switzerland and singapore what unifies the work in this book is that each chapter focuses on a key feature of the discipline of geography providing scholarly examples of evidence based practices for assessing student s knowledge and skills yatdjuligin explores the fundamentals of health care for indigenous australians from both the patient and the professional perspective
