this book deals with the inspired and relentless search for the true religion telling the story of joseph bar joseph a messiah crucified in 57 b c and showing the methods and techniques of developing the inner initiate godself ben witherington iii offers a comprehensive assessment of what scholars such as john dominic crossan marcus borg burton mack and the jesus seminar are really saying about jesus why bother with god when he is viewed as a sacred superstition a discarded non entity or a pretext for religious wars jews and christians have doubted and discarded god at many times throughout the ages and have also justified countless conflicts in his name their history however tells a different story here we observe the historical reality of god s relentless quest to relate with people whether jew or gentile despite significant differences between these communities this is the dna that binds them and places them in a paradigm different from the one articulated in the quest christ amidst the quest where people are seeking to be freed from their predicament the judeo christian narrative shows god s incessant quest orchestrated through various channels such as scriptural revelation miraculous interventions covenantal commitments divine presence in the tabernacle or the temple god s sacrificial incarnation in christ and the advent of the anticipated jewish messiah the narrative climaxes in a grand finale when humans and their habitat will be ushered into an age of peace and harmony journeying through such a narrative will provide assurance that god is walking with you amidst life s turmoil and that the best is yet to be groundbreaking study that examines the works of more than fifty 18th and 19th century authors and scholars and concludes that many of the earlier historical reconstructions of christ were largely fantasies this is a new release of the original 1924 edition in this book austin stevenson argues that it is not the divinity of jesus that causes problems for historians but his humanity to insist that jesus was fully human as both theologians and historians do still leaves us with the question of what it means to be human it turns out that theologians and historians often have different answers to this question on both a philosophical and a theological register furthermore historians frequently misunderstand the historiographical implications of classical christology and thus the compatibility between traditional beliefs about jesus and critical historical inquiry through close engagement with the thought of thomas aquinas c 1225 74 this book offers a new path toward the reconciliation of these disciplines by focusing on human knowledge and subjectivity which are central issues in both historical method and christology by interrogating and challenging the normative metaphysical assumptions operative in jesus scholarship a range of possibility is opened up for approaches to jesus that are genuinely historical but not naturalistic this highly praised guide to the understanding of jesus and the gospels prepares the reader to deal with literary sources historical reconstruction and continuing issues in the quest for jesus as every point scholarly options are introduced in an objective manner that encourages readers to do their own thinking u the author argues that mysticism is not confined to christianity but the relation between the soul and christ is a distinctive mystical experience and it is specific in this sense that this relation works out in a certain practice of life and certain development of character it is this concrete effect of a true christian mysticism which forms the subject of this book the first in the six part journey to jesus series quest for life is the story of the revelation of the grace of god and of the sovereign power of god at work in the world
